committee. The Bloomington band will receive the same amount, making $120 in all for band music."

Fireworks are a must for the Fourth of July, and the one planned for Bloomington in 1903 was no exception. The display was apparently divided into two areas of the square. The Evening World reported that the ones on the northwest corner of the square were handled by Dr. Charles Weir, Harry Orchard, Frank Graham, Will Graham and Gamble Peterson. On duty for the display fired off on the southeast corner were Lon Davis, Aaron Rose, James Kelly, Bridge Nichols and Alex Hirsch.

Concluded the newspaper, "The committee in charge of the celebration worked hard and deserved much credit for their untiring labors. Especially active in the work was Architect John L. Nichols and Alex Hirsch."
