

Varied 'guests' visited home

(Continued from page 1)

called, is owned by the IU Foundation and leased to an appropriate and benevolent occupant, the Organization of American Historians. The house has also been called the Raintree House because of the huge, old raintree on the property. Whatever its name, the house, located at 112 N. Bryan Street, is comparable to such Bloomington landmarks and contemporaries as the Wylie House, 317 N. Fairview; the Dunning House, 608 W. Third, and the Cochran House at the corner of Eighth and Rogers streets.